How KEO came to be: our founder's story

There are split seconds in our lives that shape us forever. For me, that second happened one day as I was crossing the road – at just four years old. I was hit by a car. Lucky to survive, my tiny body was bruised and broken. Many months and multiple surgeries later, I walked out of those four hospital walls. Against all odds. And full of pride.

Contrary to what you might think, when I reflect on that time today, all I do is smile. And that's all thanks to my amazing allied health team who helped me find joy in each day – despite the challenges. It was this early experience that lit the flame for my future career as a physiotherapist. And then, for creating KEO.

Today, I'm proud to lead a multidisciplinary team that's driven to achieve clinical excellence and outstanding outcomes for the people we support. Blending our diverse expertise, we unite to better people's lives – just like my allied health team did for me.
